You may have heard that there are ghosts of the Civil War that roam around the graves and sites of cemeteries around the country. Folks often say that they can see soldiers marching at times or meeting together. Many of these tales and sightings have been passed down through generations and whether you believe them or not, they do make great stories--- especially on Halloween!

Author , and former curator for The Jefferson Barracks Historic Park , Marc Kollbaum, will share stories from this era, including tales of the “Lost Battalion”, Gettysburg, Vicksburg, and other famous, and not so famous, battles of The Civil War.
